DAMBORG TO SEEK OPINIONS OF LOCAL VOTERS TUESDAY

Everyone is invited to attend a meeting sponsored by the Bethel Chamber of Commerce, which will be held at the American Legion Home next Tuesday evening, June 21, at 7:30. Alumni Meeting. On Saturday, June 11, Alumni Day, twenty-seven graduates assembled for the annual meeting in Hamscom Hall at 11 A. M. with Harold Bennett, Alumni President presiding. It was reported that alumni funds have provided in the past year two $100 scholarships and 16 lesser awards amounting from $10 to $25 each. Similar provision was taken for pupil assistance in the coming school semester of 1955-1956. Besides a modest annual contribution to help with the Gould Library, the Alumni Association has purchased in the past year and for use on the campus only, 15 aluminum tables in order to do away with borrowing for parties. The tables were used at the Alumni banquet and seemed more convenient in the crowded gym.

The following slate of officers were elected for the coming year: President, Richard Bryant; Vice President, Jay Willard; Corresponding Secretary, Eva Bean; Recording Secretary, Betty Anderson; Treasurer, Celia Gorman; Auditor, Wilbur Myers; Member of Athletic Council, Charles Chapin.

Executive Committee: Phyllis Dore, June Greig, Stanley Davis, Barbara Lucas, Charles Freeman, Leland Brown, James Brown.

ACROSS the DESK

ideas from other editors

From the Levittown Tribune, Levittown, New York: Some of the most important things in life are taken for granted and accorded scant consideration until they cease to function. For instance, the occupants of a luxurious Pullman sleeper think little about the wheels on which it rolls. The most vital things are generally the least obvious. The country press goes into this category. But there would be no United States without the country press any more than a Pullman car without a wheel.

No nation in the world is so universally served with newspapers as is the United States. But the average citizen doesn't know this—he takes the newspaper for granted even in the smallest town. And yet without the newspaper, community affairs could not be conducted as they are. Try to think of your town without newspapers, even the smallest weekly. Where would you get the local news and the intimate information on births, marriages, deaths and the affairs of the community that at some time or other are so important to every family? Where would you read the proceedings of the county courts, the legal notices, the personal columns, the news about the local churches, judges, and the advertising of the local merchants? The big city dailies carry the world news, but they cannot carry the day-to-day happenings.

Along with the school teacher, the local editor is responsible for the education of the community. A good editor comments on activities, local, state and national, that affect the lives of all citizens. He discusses questions from the standpoint of their bearing on community welfare. He must have a good working knowledge of government, legislation, social conditions, industry, labor, taxation—the things that affect the working man, the businessman, and the family.

How many people appreciate these facts that underlie the ownership and publication of the 12,000 country newspapers in the United States? Those papers are the greatest safeguard of our nation's independence. They are individually owned, and the vast majority of their editors are well grounded in the ideals of Constitutional government, and are opposed to trends toward socialism which disregard the importance of the individual. The home town weekly reaches a majority of readers in the United States. It deserves more recognition than it receives. And in that respect it is like the wheel under the Pullman car, but with this difference: It is human and it can appreciate a word or act of encouragement while upholding the rights of others. As the slogan goes it is "More than a Newspaper; A Community Service."

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

Herbert Hoover's latest nationally-broadcast address dealt with the work and goals of the Commission on Reorganization of the Government, which he heads. The Commission's reports have been coming out at frequent intervals lately, and more are due. Some 400 leading executives and professional men contributed their time and experience over a 29-month period to the 20 task forces which produced them. The magnitude of the job is indicated by the fact that there are about 1,600 different agencies in the government, spending a total of $63,000,000,000 a year.

The previous Hoover Commission of five years ago, which was authorized by President Truman, had 70 per cent of its recommendations adopted, and substantial improvement in the economy and efficiency of government resulted. The present Commission was given much wider authority than the prior one. It considers basic questions of policy as well as of administration. As an example, one of the reports deals with the problem of government functions which are competitive with private enterprises. There are between 2,000 and 3,000 of these. Most of them, former President Hoover said in his address, "were created in wars and emergencies for some special need, but when the task was completed, each had absorbed its empire-seeking bureaucracy and a large pressure group which benefited from it." He added that all of them are exempt from Federal taxes, that very few pay any interest or contribution on the capital the government has invested in them, and that they have other special advantages. He also said: "The loss is not wholly the taxpayer's money. It is also a loss by injury to the vitality of the private enterprise system. It is a destruction of freedoms."

The Commission's reports make recommendations of two sorts. One consists of recommendations to administrative agencies which can be carried out within their present authorities. The other is recommendations requiring Congressional action. In the first nine reports, there are about 250 of the administrative recommendations and about 170 of those involving legislation. Mr. Hoover emphasizes that this does not mean 170 separate laws—about nine would be sufficient.

How much can be "saved from all this? In the reports so far completed, to quote Mr. Hoover again, "Our separate Task Forces estimate that an aggregate of $3,000,000,000 of savings could be made to the taxpayer. And beyond that there could be returned to the Treasury about $7,000,000,000 of money which could be provided otherwise. And there are still more to come." Here he stated that the savings would result from the elimination of waste, and "not the strangulation of either our defense or the stifling of public welfare."

Finally, the former President emphasized that there is more to be done than saving money and improving governmental efficiency. At the end he said: "Our job is to show a safe road to a balanced budget. And this is no trivial job. Its accomplishment is vital to every citizen in this land."

"But over and above even that, many of these reports spell out ways to strengthen the foundations of the Republic."

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

In Germany, a professor is taking off on a research job that is no common run of the mill research. The professor is setting out to find "how a honey bee knows where he is going."

Now folks, if the good professor can take time to pry into the workings of a bee, this Hickory Grove department is going to pry into what is percolating in the chambers of so many governors and mayors and congressmen that causes them to shiver and shake in their beds when some raucous labor leader scolds off and threatens to vote for the other guy. They don't catch on to the fact as demonstrated by Senator Taft a few years back that the man who really works and are labor itself are not the scoundrels, threatening, threatening type. Finding out about bees and politicians are not mediocre projects. I will listen to suggestions I think I may need, first off, a half dozen good phrases.

That's why, there is something in the words of the famous saying: "Talk America, when food and transportation and a dozen things can be fixed in a snap and made search by a handful of pickets and rough and tough members. Veritas, in too many political places, is in short supply—scarcely there."

Years with the low down, JO SMITH.

To a great mind, nothing is little.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

Cannelton, Ind., News: "Our great freedoms, our tremendous industrial assets, our great farm endeavors, our record of discoveries and inventions and countless other fundamentals which combine to make us defenders of our theory of life have not come by accident. They have all been possible because we live in a nation of free enterprisers."

Beaver Falls, Pa., News-Tribune: "The people in this country who would like to have their taxes reduced (and who wouldn't) should take note of this. Tax reduction is the reward of having a balanced budget. Our taxes can be reduced again when the administration and Congress get our budget back into balance. Let's hope it won't be too long."

Bedford, Ind., Daily Times-Mail: "So long as man is inventive, so long as he is able to reap the rewards of his own efforts, just that long will there be no monopoly. . . . The biggest monopoly, the biggest fear in the world today is not business, not labor—but government itself. That is monopoly."

WINGS OVER U. S. A.

RUMFORD UNIVERSALISTS TO HAVE ALL-DAY AUCTION

To raise $1,000 for the parish treasury, the Universalist Church of Rumford will try a somewhat unusual method. It will conduct a day long auction on the church lawn at the corner of Franklin Street and Plymouth Avenue, on Friday, June 17, with Stuart P. Martin, popular Oxford County auctioneer, wielding the hammer.

All manner of articles will be found at the sale which in the event of bad weather will be held inside. Already, friends of the church from the community and neighboring parishes have given many items from their homes, and business houses are contributing new merchandise to the cause.

More can be used if any care to make contributions. Only items which cannot be accepted are clothing, ice boxes, curl springs and featherbeds.

The auction will open at 9:00 a. m. A buffet luncheon will be served at noon.

Dana Simmons, principal of Stephens High School in Rumford, said that anyone who has articles to donate may call Jean Constantine at Rumford 574-M.

Among the articles to be placed on sale is a petticoat sampler over one hundred years old, and two unusual antique vases.

General chairman of the affair is Rev. Warren Lovejoy, pastor of the church.

America's first Diesel-powered streamlined train—the Burlington Zephyr—has travelled over two and one-half million miles, or more than the equivalent of one hundred times around the earth at the Equator, since it was placed in operation in 1934.

Almost one-third of Canada's fifteen million people live in the province of Ontario. This province produces more than half of the country's manufactured goods, and more nickel than the rest of the world combined.

Of the 100,000 orphans in the United States today, 26,000 of them lost at least one parent to cancer.

NEW LAW REGULATES USE OF ELECTRIC FENCES

A new emergency law relating to the sale, use and installation of electric fences was passed by the 97th legislature because of the frequency of accidents involving electric fences. The law required that fence wire charged with electricity must have a standard controller. Such controller is to be on the approved list of the Underwriters Laboratories or the Department of Industrial Cooperation at the University of Maine.

The principle of electric fencing is that a charge placed on the fence wire is "shorted" through the animal to the ground when the animal standing on damp ground comes in contact with the charged wire. The effect is a whip-biting sensation which surprises or baffles the animal, causing it to step back. Animals require some training, however, and a fenced-off corner of the barnyard with a little feed in the enclosure, and time to allow them to experience the bite of this new fence, are required. When the animals again contact the fence in the pasture, they will do so more cautiously and will not rush or walk through it.

Dry ground conditions are the greatest handicap to using an electric fence. To offset the lack of "conductivity" in dry ground, run a second wire under the "hot" fence wire and fasten the "ground" of the unit to it also. Or, if woven wire is already in the fence, use it for a "ground". Keep weeds and grass clear from touching and "shorting" the "hot" wire. Be sure to follow the manufacturers' instructions for installing fence.

But play safe. A man or animal can be electrocuted by standing on damp ground or concrete and accidentally touching a live 110-volt wire. The purpose of the approved electric fence controller is to eliminate this danger and safeguard the life of persons and animals.

The alternating current type of electric fence controller delivering intermittent shock to the fence is the most common type. This controller is less liable to give radio

THE AMERICAN WAY

Demanding the Impossible

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

E. H. Moon, 57 Standish Avenue, N.W., Atlanta, Georgia, was forced to give up the practice of professional engineering due to a crack-up of nerves caused by years of high pressured hard work. His breakdown was of course a gradual process, increasing over a period of about six months to the extent that he was unable to work or sleep. He worried constantly about his condition, and, after receiving all the benefits that medical science could provide, his doctor told him that he would have to change his mental attitude and stop worrying, explaining that this of course he would have to do for himself.

He immediately began to search for a magic formula which would banish worry and give him peace of mind, and he found that formula. It is simply this:

He does not worry about the mistakes that he made yesterday.

He tries not to anticipate the unpleasant things that may happen tomorrow and over which he has no control.

He tries to do the best he can each day.

An there is another angle to his formula. In the quiet of the early morning hours when most people are still asleep and he is enjoying his first pre-breakfast cup of coffee and a cigarette, he takes time out to thank a Higher Power for the many good things he is privileged to enjoy, and to ask for help in any situation that may arise during the day.

He says it is a sort of partnership arrangement and is very well expressed by an old colored preacher's prayer in which he said: "Lord, there ain't nothin' gonna happen today that me and you together can't take care of."

and TV interference. The output voltage of the alternating current type controller when connected to the 110-volt service is increased to provide greater electrical pressure. The amperage is thereby reduced to make the "on-off" shock safe. The principle of operation of this type allows for an "on" cycle approximately every two seconds which gives the animal time to break away. Remember, it is now unlawful to use anything but an approved type electric fence controller. Check with the farm service representative of your electric power supplier, your extension agent or agricultural engineer or your county agricultural agent for further details.

TO ONE who is attached to the Washington scene over a long period of years, it is not a pleasant experience to watch the continual hassle year after year of the same groups pulling and hauling this way and that . . . all with one motive, self interest at the expense of the national welfare.

So it is indeed a refreshing experience for a single business group, out of many here in Washington, to come up with a completely objective viewpoint in its approach to national economic policies and to ally itself with the public interest as well as the business interest.

Such an organization is the Committee for Economic Development, formed in 1942 to do a specific job of promoting an orderly transfer from high war production to high employment peace production. This reporter, long on the Washington front, has watched with interest the operation of this group of business leaders, progressive and high-minded, and today there is no other group of business leaders who have as much integrity, or who have as much influence because of this objective integrity, as the Committee for Economic Development.

The objectives of this group of business leaders is particularly important at this time, for this administration is a so-called business administration. The tremendous majority of government officials in this administration come from the ranks of business firms, top-business firms. And their record to date does little to reflect credit on the business community. The philosophy of "What's good for General Motors is good for the Country" is just about as far from the philosophy of CED as it is possible to get. In an address here in Washington recently, Meyer Keating, chairman of the Board of Trustees for the Committee for Economic Development, and President of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, of Chicago, spoke on this very subject of business leadership and the part it should play in aiding the formation of national economic policy. Pointing out the challenges which face the nation today as the leader in the free world, Mr. Keating said:

"Inseparable from the demand for a large degree of prosperity is the insistence on economic security—security that is based on reasonable economic stability. There was a time when our people accepted as a matter of course the strains brought about by broad swings in the business cycle . . . today, largely because of the great depression . . . the public expects business to take a greater degree of responsibility for economic stability. The public demands also a degree of government intervention in economic affairs in order to prevent a recurrence of the gross instability of the past . . . It is obvious that the business community can stand aside from the formulation of national economic policies only at the peril of our economic system."

IN SOME parts of the country, a license is required for those who live in trailers and pick up pennies by reading tea leaves, yet every day hundreds of prominent folks about the nation make all sorts of fantastic predictions and it isn't costing them a cent. I propose a profane tax be levied against anyone indulging in anything related to the art of prognosticating.

I don't propose in any way to do away with free speech. Everybody has the right to speak his mind. It just seems to me that a lot of people are predicting things they really don't believe merely to get their name in the headlines. For instance, I read three separate articles recently. Each was written by a V. I. T. They predicted, in this order: 1. We will have another war within three months. 2. We will have a war within one year. 3. We will have a war within five years. Seems as if I read somewhere where somebody said we wouldn't have another war, but if I did, the guy didn't know what he was talking about. Three-to-one are pretty good odds in any game.

War is only one thing. There are predictions we'll reach the moon in a few years; the world will end soon; America will become an iceberg within a few decades; the Communists will win the world.

I'm no worrier, but these things bother me. I wonder if the people who force these things so clearly would be so quick to tell the world about it if they were required to buy a license before prognosticating?

Things every Insurance Buyer should know

Why an INDEPENDENT insurance agency can serve you best.

In insurance, as in many other fields, there is no monopoly on good ideas, good service, or low rates. One company may have developed better policy for the home owner in some areas. Another company may boast lower rates on certain forms of insurance. Still a third may be especially noted for prompt service.

Which of these companies should you insure with? If you ask an individual company representative, he will usually try to persuade you that his company—and only his company—is best for you.

That in fact is a good reason for buying insurance through Goodwin's Inc. which is an independent insurance agency. . . .

Because we represent not one but twenty-five (25) different companies, we can be impartial in selecting the best company for your individual needs.

Because we recognize insurance as a profession, our entire staff makes a constant study of new types of insurance coverages to make certain your insurance is up to date and that it gives you only what you need!

Because we are independent, you can count on us to assist you with your claim when you suffer a loss and to represent YOUR INTERESTS to the fullest at all times!

WHY NOT ask this agency to review your policies? We will do so without charge or obligation.

HANEY - ELLINGWOOD

Miss Frances Ellingwood became the bride of John Haney, Pittsburgh, Pa., Sunday afternoon, in a candle light double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Ronald C. Heeks, at the North Paris Federated Church. She was given in marriage by her father.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin W. Ellingwood, of West Paris. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Haney, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The picturesque church was decorated with white carnations, evergreen boughs and candelabra. Mrs. Howard Ellingwood, the organist, and Mrs. Perley Ellingwood, the soloist for the ceremony, sang.

The bride's gown was of white nylon lace over satin, floor length with a train. A white nylon net fingertip length veil was caught to a cap trimmed with seed pearls and sequins. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Hugh Warren Abbott, West Paris, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Lt. Pauline Lubotsky, Sampson Air Force Base, Geneva, N. Y., and Mrs. James Young, West Paris, cousin of the bride.

The bride's brother, Airman First Class David Ellingwood, Loring Air Force Base, was best man. Ushers were Alan Ellingwood, a cousin of the bride, and Leon Proctor, West Paris, her uncle.

The reception was held following the ceremony at the North Paris Community Hall with Miss Gwendolyn Stellhorn, West Paris, in charge of the guest book. Mrs. Frederick Oja, Mrs. Wilbur Chamberlain and Mrs. Rupert Grover, aunts of the bride, were in charge of gifts. Mrs. Dorothy Childs and Mrs. Reta Proctor, of West Paris, served, and Mrs. Elsie Lovell, Buckfield, cut the wedding cake assisted by Mrs. Eula Ellingwood.

ed briefly on the year's progress at Gould. Dr. Walters spoke of the background and early history of the Bingham family in Ohio. He emphasized the sterling qualities of the man whom few people knew, and who had done so much for the school and for the town. Dr. John Fitzsimmons, of Plymouth Congregational Church, Belmont, Mass., gave an after-dinner account of his experiences as chaplain in the Flying Tigers in the recent war. Mixed with his sometimes facetious tale of going AWOL to get where he could be of service to soldiers and three months ahead of his orders he indicated an earnest appeal for young people not to neglect their religion. His talk was enjoyed.

Once again much credit is due Mrs. Guggin, Chef Glines and all the high staff for an excellent dinner—a high spot in a day of many pleasant renewals of old friendships.

BETHEL MIDGET BALL CLUBS TO START SEASON THIS WEEK

This week the Bethel Midget Ball Clubs start their baseball season. Thanks to the work and endeavor of the Executive Committee and interest and donations of Bethel citizens, the young ball players can now uniforms to participate in the Oxford County League games.

The main aim of the committee was to complete two ball fields, raise enough money for baseball uniforms and necessary supplies, and insurance for each boy.

A rummage sale started the ball rolling by the fund raising chairman, Shirley Clough, realizing a profit of $57. The Day Group of the Bethel Extension Service held a food sale and contributed $11.40.

Thanks and acknowledgements have been sent to the following who gave generous donations toward the baseball uniforms and equipment: Charles Merrill, Myron Bryant, Pete Chapin, Bethel Restaurant, Bethel Spa, Brown's Variety Store, Ducky's Service Station, Harold Bennett, Pete Baker, Kimball Ames, Spec Guernsey, Dick Davis, and Roderick McMillin.

The American Legion gave a check for $112.27 the amount left from the Junior Legion Baseball Club, and also their uniforms and supplies. Thanks to them the Pony League boys will be able to have their own uniforms for this season.

Insurance policies were issued and in force on April 15 for three teams of boys by Tom Brown.

The two baseball fields located above the Crescent Park School have certainly been improved. Addison Saunders and Dick Davis are chairmen of these fields and they have solicited the aid of many parents and committee members as well as the boys to help complete them. The Little League field is almost ready for games and practices have been held there for about two weeks. During the past week Grafton Lumber Co. and Ernest Blake gave lumber for the bleachers, cold-drink stand, and dug-outs, and labor for building by Tom Brown and Arthur Herick, foul posts by Leslie Davis, and painting by Millard Clough.

The Pony League field is not completed as yet, and last report from Dick Davis was that he needed some bulldozers. These boys have been practicing at Thurston Field and probably will hold games there until their own field is ready. When the men were clearing the two ball fields a lot of wood was accumulated, but thanks to Carroll Abbott, he trucked it off, and gave us a check for $33.18.

About 45 boys 8-12 years of age turned out for the Little League of boys teams. These boys will be known as the Midgets and have enough boys for three teams, the Red Sox, Braves and Yankees. Only the Red Sox and Braves will compete in the Oxford County League games, and the Yankees composed of 8 and 9 year olds will play two games with Norway and Bryant Pond, for the experience.

Conservation Farming In Oxford County

by Douglas L. Marston
Soil Conservation Service

We did a ditch blasting job on the R. C. Dunn & Son farm in Brownfield last week. Mr. Dunn has an intervalle field near the Saco River that is wet most of the time and had the ditch blasted to the river.

Regular ditching dynamite was used and a stick placed about every foot to a depth of about 18 to 24 inches. This made a ditch of about 3 feet in depth and about 6 feet wide at the top. The area blasted was through a grove of maple trees and very wet in some places making it impractical for heavy equipment to operate.

We laid out some contour lines on the Donald and Jim Mason farm in Woodstock recently. The Mason Brothers also plan to remove some stone wall and complete a farm pond that was started last summer.

The Maine farmer gets only about 35 per cent of the consumer's dollar spent for white potatoes, estimates the U. S. Department of Agriculture.
